

Pushing The Envelope Productions

918 Eastern Ave. NE # 203
Washington, DC 20019

Toni Monteiro, Producer/Director/Editor

July 30, 2009

To Whom It May Concern:

I am a member producer at DCTV, The District of Columbia Public Access television station. I do a show called Local Celebrity Video for local area talent to gain experience and exposure in the entertainment industry. I have had the great fortune to meet and video tape Hip Hop Education as well as listen to their inspirational music and share their message. This is the only group in the DC/MD/VA area whose goal is to educate children using children is the most positive way imaginable.

Hip Hop Education has a very big goal – to reach children and their parents with the message that MTV, VH1 and BET do not have their best interest at heart. Children should be entertained as children, not impressionable little adults who will mimic this behavior. Their message is very simple: Let us be kids and let us teach you who kids are, what we need and what we really need from you! I honestly believe that those who love the world of Hip Hop and Rap have, for all practical purposes, tossed this common sense philosophy out the window just for the sake of a buck. It is so refreshing to see the children, not parents but children, tell these Hip Hop and Rap moguls that they are wrong. Dead wrong!

It is my goal in the future to try to design a project especially for them so they can move to their rightful place on TV, assisting in the proper education of our youth. Hats off to Hip Hop Education for taking a very difficult job and doing it very well.

Sincerely,

Toni Monteiro
Principle and founder
PEP.